are able to care for our own who may want a great deal of work done with very little money, and instead of the general cause being hurt it was helped by the campaign in West Virginia. There are some Republicans who recognize the value of West Virginia in the campaign. Col. Mussey, writing from New York to the Cincinnati Commercial Gazette, says:

Cincinnati Commercial Gazette, 8833:

The West Virginia diversion was a flank movement, and served its purpose. It distracted the attention of the Democracy, sent Gorman and Hendricks and all their best men there, necessitated the expenditure of large sums of money where they had not expected and never had before spent a cent, while the Republican Committee paid its attention exclusively to Ohio. The West Virginia reconnoisance in force kept men and money and stumpers and repeaters out of Ohio, and besides that the skirmishers sent out toward. West Virginia came pretty near explained.

paying it except by borrowing the money.

The people knew how it all happenedjust as it had happened before—and they did not intend to sanction more of the same kind. They preferred to aggravate the existing embarrassment, hoping that good might come out of it. It has been made clear that the people will not authorize a loan unless they shall first be convinced that the business of the city of Wheeling is hereafter to be conducted on business principles. They must know that money cannot be appropriated in excess of the revenues; they must know that the city's orders are not going to be kited around the street with no hope of redemption except through another loan;

they must know that their servants cannot make the city spend faster than it earns and without any regard for the rovenues; they must be convinced that Couneil and the executive officers are so bound by act of Legislature that they cannot budge except within prescribed limits. Then the people, desiring to deal honestly by the city's creditors, will agree to settle by the city's creditors, will agree to settle up and take a fresh start.

Councilman Caldwell's proposition, with Conncilman Itall's further suggestion, meets the case. It gives the people reasonable control over their expenditures by confining appropriations to revenues. It rivets a chain of responsibility on every councilman and every member of every board. It puts order into a disorderly systom of handling public funds. An amendment to the city charter embracing these points would put in the hand of every citizen a weapon of defense. No councilman or other public scrant would run his head into that noose unless the law were allowed to become a dead letter.

The citizens movement is already bear—

Wall' reid the little Christmas party."

"Ho-ho-ho!" laughed the Old Oak, "you and your family are too green, you should have put on brown dincy jackets like the rest of us, and then you might live to a green old age, as I shall."

Just then the woodman appeared. "Well!" cried the little Christmas tree, as the woodman bore it away, "it's a great honor to be chosen, and Christmas to mose unless the were allowed to become a dead letter.

The citizens movement is already bear—

Many who long suffered from inde-law were allowed to become a dead letter.

The citizens movement is already bearing good fruit. Councilmen are thinksing, and intelligent and public-spirited members are desirous of giving force to the popular will. If the funding scheme proposed to the citizens meeting shall be approved; and if Mr. Caldwell's proposition or something better shall be made law, Wheeling can take a new start in her financial affairs with reasonable assurance that she has seen the last of dishonored city orders, unpaid interest, and impaired credit, Follow this up by sending to Council the best men in every ward, an Wheeling will have made a long stride so oming up out of the depths.

West Virginia in the Campaign.

Some of the friends, in seeking the causes of Republican defeat, have a good deal to say about the reckless expenditure of money on West Virginia. This large sum, they think, might have been used to better advantage elsewhere.

In fact the money sent to West Virginia wouldn't have been adrop in the bucket of a New York ward. There was a great deal of work done with very little forms of the same teachers.

Fighting Sleep With Tea.

The practice of taking tea or coffee by students, in order to work at night, is downed to week at eide. My old friend, the late Thomas Wright, was the victim of this terrible folly. He undertook the translation of the "Life of Julius Cæsar," by Napoleon III, and to do it in a cruelly short time. He fulfilled his it in a cruelly short time. He fulfilled his contract by sitting up seyeral nights successively by the aid of strong tea or coffee (I forget which). I saw him shortly afterward. In a few weeks he had aged alarmingly, and become quite bald, his brain gave way and never recovered. There was but little difference between his age and mine, and but for this dreadful cerebral strain, rendered possible only by the alkaloid (for otherwise he would have fallen to sleep over his work, and thereby saved his life), he might still be armusing and instructing thousands of readers by fresh volumes of popularized archaeological research. research.

Figs in Winter.

To have plentry of winter eggs is one of the plenaures and luxuries in which every owner of a few birds can revel. If they will only take the necessary trouble, it does nothing from the serviceableness of our fight as a flank movement. It did just what the Commercial Gazette's correspondent says it did—kept the enemy employed and gave our friends a chance to make their brilliant sweep in Ohio.

The City's Flanacial Condition.

When the people of Wheeling were last asked to authorize a loan to cover the city's floating indebtedness they refused their consent. This was their protest against the loose system or no system which permits debt to be contracted in the name of the city with no expectation of paying it except by borrowing the money.
